

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Two Richmond girls, Miss Julia C. Jones and Miss Mary H. Davidson, who will be among the bridesmaids at the wedding of George Harrison Houston, of Cincinnati, will be celebrated, have been extensively entertained with the bride party since going to Pewee Valley, Kentucky, about a week ago.

A luncheon was given for them recently, with most attractive decorations and entertainment. The party was held at the home of Mrs. Davidson, who had appointed dinner party to-day, and Mr. Cochran was a recent host at a large theatre party, when all the bride attendants were present.

Miss Jones's wedding gown is to be of heavy satin and old lace, and her flowers will be a shower of white orchids. She will have on the veil which her elder sister, Miss Virginia Randolph Hoge, wore at her marriage several years ago to the late Mr. Hoge. The Marchioness will be her sister's matron of honor, in a gown of deep lilac tone, and a younger sister will act as maid of honor.

The costumes of the bridesmaids are to be in rainbow effect, the two in front wearing dresses of Liberty satin of palest rose color, while the next two will wear dresses of a deeper pink, and the costumes of the two following will shade into pale lilac. Their hats of satin straw, trimmed in pink, and of velvet and hydrangea, will exactly match each frock, and they will carry large bunches of orchids of the same color.

STORY IS DOUBTFUL.

Friends of Howell believe him innocent of charge.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] NORFOLK, Va., April 27.—Those who know I. C. Howell, of Plimmer's Point, do not take any stock in the confession of Charles Eagle, a small negro boy, implicating the former in the work of incendiaries that recently resulted in the destruction of considerable property in that suburb. It is declared to be a ridiculous story.

Eagle charges that Mr. Howell employed him to assist in setting fire to his place, and that he was paid $10 for the job. They started several fires, in order to disarm suspicion from Howell's place, is the charge of the boy. Howell was arrested last night, but promptly gave bond, and declares that he will be able to show that he was nowhere near the premises that night, although the negro boy declares that he assisted in the work and applied the match to one house. His bond was fixed at $1,000, pending a preliminary hearing.

Charred Remains of Horace Smith Raked from Ashes of Home.

Barely Escape With Their Lives.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va., April 27.—Horace Smith, aged eighty-four, who for years was one of the best known farmers in this section of Albemarle county, was burned to death last night in a fire that destroyed the home of his nephew, Jerry Smith, situated on a high peak of the Ragged Mountains, four miles south of and in plain view of Charlottesville and less than a mile east of Hickory Hill station.

The other occupants of the dwelling barely escaped without injury. They were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith; Robert Smith, a brother of Jerry Smith; and a Mrs. Smith, a daughter of James Morris, who resides in the neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith, who occupied a room on the lower floor adjoining that of their aged uncle, were awakened about 11 o'clock by a roar of flames. Robert Smith, who was in another room on the lower floor, and Mrs. Smith, who was in the room directly over that occupied by Horace Smith, were aroused and made their escape in their nightgowns.

S. M. Teel, a colored man who was hunting on the Mountain were the first outsiders to reach the scene. A determined effort was made to rescue Horace Smith, but the attempts proved futile. Soon after midnight the charred body, all that remained of the old man, was raked out of the ashes. The head, arms and legs had been burned from the trunk.

The fire started in the basement room occupied by Horace Smith, who was quite infirm, and is supposed to have caught from a stove. The old man, who always remained up late at night and slept in the day, was heard to "chuck" the fire about 10 o'clock. It is possible, however, that he fell asleep while smoking his pipe and that the bedding caught fire.

The building, a six-room frame and log structure, was owned and occupied by the Smith family for a long term of years, was entirely consumed, together with practically all of its contents. There was no insurance on the building or furniture.

Horace Smith was the son of the late John Smith, who for years was an overseer at the University of Virginia. His wife, who preceded him to the grave about two years ago, was Miss Anne Morris, of Fluvanna county.

Five children survive—two sons and three daughters. They are Mrs. J. D. Lankford and Charles Smith, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. George Lumsden, of Merrill, O.; and Mrs. John Day and Horace Smith, of this city.

The remains of Mr. Smith were laid to rest at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the family burning-ground, close to the scene of the fire. The services, which were conducted by Professor Ormond Stone, of the University of Virginia, were largely attended by the residents of the neighborhood, among whom he was held in high esteem.

H. Hugenet, of the United States Army, under orders from the War Department. It will be some days before the summary of results can be ascertained. The report of Captain Hugenet is sure to make a much better showing than of Inspector-General Stringfield, as he pointed out defects in local companies to be remedied before the army officer came along for his inspection.

Good evidence that thinking people—educators and others—know coffee is a thing to be used with some risk.
